

Dear Station Manager,

I am a customer of your station, and am glad to support it with my business. As a diesel vehicle owner living in the area, I'm very interested in finding a source of biodiesel nearby. I would like to join the growing number of people who use this fuel, and am requesting that you add a biodiesel pump to your station.

As you probably know, biodiesel is an American-made alternative to petroleum diesel, derived from vegetable oils. It significantly reduces harmful air emissions and lowers our country's dependence on foreign oil. Biodiesel exceeds the E.P.A.'s ULSD requirements.

The people at Sundays Energy, based in Minneapolis, provide a wealth of information on their website about biodiesel. They also have a complete, proven service for stations like yours to get set up and pumping quickly. You can read about Sundays Energy's retail biodiesel services online at: <http://www.sundaysenergy.com/biodiesel/retail>

If you want to talk to someone about this, please contact Sundays Energy directly. They are equipped to provide a seamless conversion at your station:
